Whitehall, November 2.

LEtters from Valentia of the 5th of the laſt Month, N. S. contain the following Account of the laſt Campaign in Spain:

The 24th of June, N. S. the City of Madrid ſubmitted to King Charles III. upon the Approach of the Confederate Army commanded by the Marquis das Minas and the Earl of Galway. Several Expreſſes and divers Parties of Horſe were immediately diſpatched to the King of Spain, ſome by the way of Valentia, others by Arragon, to haſten his coming to his Capital City, with as many Troops as he could; for the Enemy's Army which had been employed in the Siege of Barcelona marching with great Diligence thro' Navarre to get back to Caſtile, and the Body commanded by the Conde de las Torres having joined the Duke of Berwick, as the reſt of their Troops which were in the ſeveral Provinces had likewiſe done, it was neceſſary we ſhould alſo draw all our Forces together, to preſerve our Superiority, or at leaſt to prevent the Enemy's outnumbering us. His Catholick Majeſty being Proclaimed at Madrid, many conſiderable Towns followed this Example, and declared for him.

In the mean time the Duke of Anjou was got to Atiença, within 20 Leagues of Madrid, and at the Entrance of the Mountains of Old Caſtile, where he had 5000 Horſe and 16 Battalions of Foot.

The Spaniards then began to ſhew their Uneaſineſs, having no certain Account of the King's March, nor of any Troops coming to reinforce us: And the King's long Abſence gave Occaſion to ſeveral Reports, which cooled the Affection of ſome, and diſheartened others of the Spaniards; and ſome Prieſts at Madrid and Toledo confidently aſſerted in publick, that King Charles was dead, and that they had ſeen him embalmed, whereupon ſeveral Officers among the Spaniſh Troops, who had promiſed to declare for his Catholick Majeſty, fell off from their Word, believing this Report to be true: And upon Advices that the French Troops were got into Navarre, many of the Inhabitants of Arevalos, where Don Franciſco Ronquillo, Preſident of Caſtile, has his Seat, were induced to take up Arms, and, by their Example, thoſe of Segovia proclaimed the Duke of Anjou a ſecond time, and thoſe of Toledo, Ciudad-Real, and of the Diſtrict of Mancha, did the like; as did alſo thoſe of Salamanca, and the neighbouring Country, whereby our Communication with Portugal was cut off; theſe People believing that the Confederates would ſoon be obliged to retire by a ſuperior Force.

However, theſe being chiefly the Effects of diſorderly Tumults, raiſed by the Rabble, the moſt conſiderable among the Spaniards being ſatisfied that the Reports of the King's Death were falſe, and ſtill giving us Aſſurances of their Loyalty to him, we did not doubt but his Preſence would reſtore all. The News being brought that his Majeſty was come to Saragoſſa, and it being apprehended that the Ceremonies of his being Proclaimed and Sworn ſhould detain him too long, Quartermaſter-General Bourguet was diſpatched to him with a ſtrong Party of Horſe, to make a Repreſentation to his Majeſty of the preſent Poſture of Affairs, and to know certainly what Meaſures he intended to take.

Our Generals receiving no Anſwer, and being informed that the French Troops encreaſed about Atiença, that the People in our Neighbourhood began openly to manifeſt their Diſpoſitions for the Duke of Anjou, and that Riots and Diſorders happened daily in Madrid and Toledo, thought of ſecuring ſome Poſt whereby they might preſerve their Communication with Portugal, and where the King with his Troops might join us. Toledo was judged the moſt proper for that purpoſe; and it was reſolved that a ſtrong Detachment ſhould immediately be ſent thither, (under pretence of puniſhing the Inhabitants for their Rebellion) to erect a Magazine, and ſecure our heavy Bagage in that Place; and that the remainder of the Army ſhould keep the Field, to obſerve the Enemy, and ſhould retire to Toledo when there ſhould be occaſion. This Detachment conſiſting of 2000 Foot and 500 Horſe, under the Command of the General of the Artillery, was ready to march the 25th of July, when Letters came from the King of Spain, with Advice, That he was leaving Saragoſſa, and would be at Molina the 28th; but that being obliged to paſs within 13 Leagues of the Enemy, he deſired we would cover his March; That the Earl of Peterborow was to join him; and that the Troops were coming up with all poſſible Diligence. Upon theſe Letters, the Deſign of retiring to Toledo was laid aſide, and it was reſolved that we ſhould advance towards the Enemy, whoſe main Body then lay at Xadraque, in order to amuſe them in ſuch manner, that they might not ſend any Detachment to intercept the King. We accordingly marched towards them; the Ground was ſo ſalt that there was no poſſibility of coming to a general Engagement: We cannonaded one another, and kept skirmiſhing during 3 Days, when, obſerving that the Enemy's Troops were continually augmenting, it was reſolved to return to the Paſs of Guadalaxara, ſince the King muſt by this time have got paſt all Danger. This Poſt was judged the moſt proper for favouring the March of the Troops that were to join us, and for avoiding a Battle, if we thought fit, till they came up.

On the firſt of Auguſt, the Enemy following us, the two Armies were in ſight of each other. We encamped near the Town, with a River between us and the Enemy, as the beſt Station to ſecure our Junction, and give Countenance to our Friends at Madrid.

Upon the News that all the Enemy's Troops were joined, and that they were marching towards us with a ſuperior Force, the Duke of Anjou's Party in Madrid appeared barefaced, and took up Arms againſt King Charles's Friends; and the 5th a Detachment of the Enemy's Horſe entred into the Place: However the Chief among the Spaniards were ſtill in Suſpence, expecting our joining, and the Iſſue of this whole Matter.

At length the King arrived in our Camp the 8th, with his Troop of Guards, two Regiments of Horſe, and 3 Battalions, two of them Dutch, and the third Italian. The Lord Raby's Regiment of Dragoons, part of Pierce's, a Spaniſh and a German Battalion, arrived five Days after. Then a Council of War was held, and it was judged impracticable to attack the Enemy, conſidering they were advantagiouſly poſted, and much ſuperior both in Horſe and Foot, for they outnumber'd us by 25 Squadrons and 13 Battalions, and their Squadrons were ſtronger and in a better Condition than ours.

The Earl of Peterborow, who came up with the King, returned towards the Fleet: And we having continued thus ſeveral Days within Cannon-ſhot of the Enemy, and our Forage and Proviſions being ſpent, it was reſolved to march to Chincon and Colmenar, to maintain thoſe Poſts as long as we could, and improve all Opportunities Fortune would favour us withal. We arrived there in two Days March; and notwithſtanding the Enemy did gain ſome ſmall Advantages over our Parties and Convoys, we continued near a Month in that Camp, and had Plenty enough.

It was then thought convenient, before the rainy Seaſon came, to march towards the Frontiers of Valentia, and diſpoſe our Quarters in ſuch manner as that we might protect Arragon, Valentia, and Catalonia, ſecure an Entrance into Caſtile, and preſerve our Communication with the Sea-Coaſt.

Though the Enemy boaſted that they would prevent us, and that the Inhabitants of almoſt the whole Kingdom of Caſtile had openly declared, and were in Arms againſt us, yet in ſpight of all Oppoſition we accompliſhed our Deſign. We decamped from Chincon the 15th, and paſſed the Tagus at Fuente-Duenas, without any Interruption from the Enemy, who croſs'd the River 4 Leagues below that Place. The 17th Lieut. Gen. Wyndham joined the Army at Veles, with 3 Engliſh Battalions and the Earl of Peterborow's Regiment of Horſe, and brought us 4 Days Proviſion of Bread and Biſket he had got together from the neighbouring Country.

The Enemy marched at ſome diſtance with their whole Army, having a good Body of Horſe always neareſt to obſerve us, but never thought fit to engage, or give us any Diſturbance: Only the 25th the Duke of Berwick, having drawn all his Forces together, and marched all Night, croſſed the Xucar, making ſhew as if he intended to have attack'd us in a large Plain through which we were to paſs to get to the River Xabriel, and to our Proviſions which were laid up at Requena. He advanced with ſuch Diligence, that his Van-Guard appeared in the Plain at the ſame time with us; but our Army marched in ſo good Order, and with ſo much Reſolution, that he had no proſpect of engaging us with any Advantage; and ſome Squadrons of his Troops that offered to attack us, met with ſo warm a Reception, that they were ſoon obliged to retire in great Diſorder: However he followed us as far as the little River Imilta, where our Army was formed; and the Enemy had then a fair Opportunity of coming to a deciſive Battle: But when they had well viewed the Countenance and Diſpoſition of our Troops, they did not think fit to make any Attempt, and we continued our March unmoleſted. Here this Juſtice muſt be done to all our Forces, both Officers and private Men, and, together with the other Confederates, to the Portugueſe, that they have all along ſhewn great Courage and Readineſs to do whatever has been deſired of them, whereby we have ſupported our ſelves beyond indeed what could be expected in the Difficulties we lay under in this barren Country; which it muſt be confeſſed is in a great meaſure owing to the prudent Conduct of the Marquis das Minas and the Earl of Galway.

We continued our March the ſame Evening, and gained the Banks of the River Xabriel; and our whole Army is ſince come to the intended Quarters along the Frontiers of Valentia and Murcia. A Detachment of the King of Spain's own Troops is ſent to Arragon. We have put Gariſons into Cuenca, Requena, and Cofrentes: whereby we have preſerved an Entrance into Caſtile, and our Troops are diſpoſed in ſuch manner, that they will be able to protect thoſe Countries which have ſubmitted to King Charles; and if we are aſſiſted with good Reinforcements, or that ſome powerful Diverſion be made made, whereby the Enemy may be obliged to weaken their Army, by making Detachments, we have Reaſon to hope for a happy and ſpeedy Concluſion of the War on this ſide.

From Prince Eugene's Camp near Alexandria, Octob. 22. N. S. The 13th Inſtant we came before Tortona; and the Prince of Darmſtad was ſent with our Horſe to inveſt Alexandria. We received an Account, That General Zumjungen had taken the Town and Caſtle of Arona. The 15th the City of Tortona ſurrendred to us; and the Gariſon retiring into the Caſtle, we left a Detachment to beſiege it, and marched towards Alexandria. The 16th we paſſed the Bormia. The 17th we came within 400 Paces of Alexandria, and formed the Siege of that Place. The 20th Count Martigni was ſent with a Detachment to take Saravella, who has ſince made himſelf Maſter of the Town; but the Enemy are ſtill in poſſeſſion of the Caſtle, which however it is believed they cannot keep long. The 21ſt the Gariſon of Alexandria beat a Parley, and the Capitulation was agreed upon, by which two French Squadrons that were in the Town were allowed to march out having their Horſes behind them, and the reſt of the Gariſon, being all Spaniards or Swiſs, remained Priſoners of War. The Duke of Savoy, with the Forces under his Command, continues before Pierghitone: The Gariſon of that Place has deſired a Capitulation; but his Royal Highneſs inſiſts upon making them Priſoners of War. We have Advice, That the Duke of Orleans is making Preparations in order to return into Piedmont; but the neceſſary Diſpoſitions are made to prevent him.

Berlin, November 2. This Morning arrived here the Sieur Spiegel, Gentleman of the Chamber to the King of Poland, with Advice, That on the 29th paſt his Majeſty defeated General Mardeveldt, who was poſted with 7 Regiments of Swediſh Horſe and 3 of Foot near Kaliſch in Great Poland. The King of Poland's Army conſiſted of 5000 Saxons, 6000 Poles, and 9000 Muſcovites. General Mardeveldt was taken Priſoner, and the Fight is ſaid to have been very bloody; for the Poles and Muſcovites gave no Quarter. The Sieur Spiegel further reports, That the Palatine of Kiow, coming to join Monſieur Mardeveldt with 6000 Poles, was likewiſe defeated.

Bruſſels, October 31. The 27th Inſtant my Lord Duke of Marlborough, attended by Mr. Stepney, Her Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary, and ſeveral General Officers, came hither from the Camp at Ghieſlinghien. His Grace was met at ſome diſtance from the Town by General Churchill, Count Zinzendorf, and other Perſons of Quality, with whom his Grace, at the repeated Requeſt of the Magiſtrates, made his Entry on Horſeback: At the Anderlech-Port his Grace was received by the Burgomaſter and Magiſtrates, who there preſented him the Keys of Honour, and made him a very handſome Speech, expreſſing their Gratitude to Her Majeſty of Great Britain and the Engliſh Nation, and to his Grace, the Glorious Inſtrument of their Deliverance. The Streets through which his Grace paſſed were filled with a great Concourſe of Nobility and Gentry, and lined with the Burghers under Arms. The People made loud Acclamations, and gave all other Demonſtrations of Joy; the Cannon in the mean time firing from the Ramparts; and the ſame Honours were paid to his Grace as were formerly to the Dukes of Burgundy. His Grace alighted at the Palace of Orange, where he was complimented by the Council of State, the States of Brabant, and the Chief of the Clergy. The 28th in the Morning the Magiſtrates waited on his Grace again in a Body, and preſented him with what they call the Wine of Honour, which was brought in a Tun gilded and painted with his Grace's Arms, upon a Carriage, with Streamers, drawn by Six Horſes, preceded by Trumpets and Kettle-Drums, and attended by a Cavalcade of young Students on Horſeback, finely Cloathed, with Devices in their Hands in Honour of his Grace, and repreſenting the great Actions of this Campaign. This Day his Grace ſet out from hence, on his Return to the Army, having, during his Stay here, received all poſſible Marks of Honour and Reſpect from the whole City.

From the Duke of Marlborough's Camp at Ghieſlenghien, Nov. 4. The 31ſt paſt the Duke of Marlborough returned hither from Bruſſels. Yeſterday Morning his Grace ordered 4 Scotch Battalions, and 6 of the Daniſh Troops, to march towards Courtray, where they are to continue for ſome Days, till the Fortifications of that Town are finiſhed, and then to march to Bruges, the Place appointed for their Winter Quarters. His Grace ſets out to morrow for the Hague, and the next day the Army will march to St. Quintin's Lennick, in order to ſeparate the 6th, and march to their reſpective Winter Quarters. The greateſt part of the Troops will be in the Frontier Gariſons, from whence they may be drawn together in 24 Hours, if there ſhould be occaſion, except the Troops of Pruſſia that are to have their Quarters between the Maeſe and the Rhine.

Hague, Nov. 9. N. S. The Duke of Marlborough arrived laſt Night at Rotterdam, having left Antwerp the day before, and taken his Paſſage on Board one of the Yachts belonging to the Admiralty of the Maeſe; and this morning his Grace arrived here, being attended by Mr. Stepney Her Majeſty of Great Britain's Envoy Extraordinary, and Count Zinzendorf. The Convoy which is to attend his Grace in his Paſſage to England arrived from thence at Helvoet-Sluice the 3d Inſtant. The Troops on both ſides in the Netherlands are marching into Winter Quarters. Monſieur Aſſenberg, who was formerly Admiral of the Danube, is appointed by the States General to be Governor of the Cape of Good-Hope; and Monſieur Gruyter to be Governor of Surinam; the preſent Governors being recalled. The Envoy of Poland received Letters yeſterday from Berlin, giving an Account, That an Expreſs had paſſed by that Place, who was ſent by the King of Poland to the Queen, with the News of his having given a total Defeat to a Body of Swedes and another of Poles near Kaliſch in Great Poland.

Edinburgh, Octob. 25. On Wedneſday the 23d Inſtant the Rabble aſſembled in a riotous manner in the Parliament Cloſe while the Parliament was ſitting; but by the Care of the Magiſtrates the Tumult was ſuppreſſed, and ſeveral of the Ringleaders were ſeized, and committed to Priſon. The Privy Council met upon this Occaſion, and Guards were poſted in ſeveral Parts of the City to prevent any further Diſorder. The next Day a Proclamation was iſſued againſt Tumults. This Day the Lord Chancellor having laid this Matter before the Parliament, it was reſolved, That the Privy Council ſhould have the Thanks of the Houſe for their Care towards the Safety and Quiet of the Parliament, and that the Houſe ſhould recommend to my Lord High Commiſſioner and the Privy Council to continue their Care thereof: And ſuch Methods are taken for that purpoſe, as (it is hoped) will effectually ſecure the publick Peace of this City againſt any further Attempts of this nature.
